We are in the final stretch before the return of our beloved Voyager and exploration of another part of the galaxy. The month of August is dedicated to these topics. The first episode, "Number Two," explores the concept of "time" in relation to Voyager's movement through space and time. The second takes a look at the history of the Kelpian race that the Voyager crew encountered years ago. In the third, we'll learn about the crew's adventures through a nebula. The fourth looks at a component of the interface that is involved with navigation. And the last episode of the show will also feature the first ever (for a Voyager viewer) visit to "Deep Space Nine." Other highlights include: Time-travel and time-distortion are the topic of the introductory commentary by special guests Jim and Denise Gellett. A review of how the episode was originally conceived and developed is included. In this episode, Kathryn Janeway admits to a medical condition she has long kept private. Ensign Harry Kim serves as our time-travel guest in the first part of the episode, as he and Neelix travel to the distant past. A New Earth episode, entitled "Future's End," takes a look at the health of the ship and crew. And in the Season 6 finale, the crew of the Enterprise encounters a strange anomaly in the neighborhood of Qo'noS. At a future date (revealed in the opening credits), we'll see the return of our heroes to the 24th Century. We also reveal that, in that future date, the series will continue
